Dr. John Morford steps in as S.U.'s new dean of education

Dr. John Morford, of Cleveland, Ohio, has been named the new dean of education, the Very Rev. Louis Gaffney, S.J., University president, announced recently.

Dr. Morford succeeds Dr. Winfield Fountain, who resigned last June after serving as dean for 15 years. Dr. Fountain is still on the education faculty.

Dr. Ralph O'Brien, associate dean and a full professor, has been serving as acting dean.

DR. MORFORD will arrive in Seattle in May and will take over full-time summer quarter.

He is currently teacher education coordinator for John Carroll University in Cleveland.

A search committee had been evaluating applicants since last January, when Dr. Fountain announced his resignation.

THE COMMITTEE approached Dr. Morford and asked if he would be interested in the position, Dr. Morford told The Spectator yesterday.

He added that he has always been interested in S.U., which is part of the reason he became an applicant.

"Both my wife and I are from Washington so it's kind of like coming home," he said.

DR. MORFORD added that he hadn't had a chance to research programs available here so couldn't really say what he planned to do as new dean.

In making the announcement, Fr. Gaffney called Dr. Morford the "clear first choice among a number of highly qualified educators, having, as he does, a balance of academic, administrative and practical experience in both private and public education."

The new dean is not new to the Northwest. Born in Montana, Dr. Morford was raised in Spokane and graduated from Gonzaga University in 1955.

HE RECEIVED a master's degree from the University of Idaho in 1961 and completed his doctorate in education, specializing in school administration, from the U.I. in 1963.

Dr. Morford taught at Pasco, Wash., junior high school from 1957 to 1960, then was at the U.I. until 1963 as a psychometrist, one who conducts tests at a counseling center.

He was an administrative intern for the Lewiston, Idaho, Public Schools before joining the faculty of John Carroll in 1963 as coordinator of the Urban Master of Arts in Teaching Program.

Dr. Morford also served as chairman of the education department from 1965-69.

DR. MORFORD is JCU's president of the American Association of University Professors chapter.

He and his family live in Solon, a suburb of Cleveland. The oldest of his five children, Joanne, 18, is a high school senior who plans to attend S.U. next year.

Tuition grant hearings held

The decision whether or not the $100 Tuition Supplement Grant Program for private universities will be ruled constitutional may depend on the amount of entanglement between church and state, the Very Rev. Louis Gaffney, S.J., University president, said yesterday.

Fr. Gaffney made the statement after returning from the State Supreme Court hearing to decide the constitutionality of the program.

THE COURT yesterday heard arguments for and against the program which has been contended as unconstitutional by several Washington State residents under the separation of church and state clause in the United States Constitution.

Alfred Schweppe, attorney for the students, gave a "brilliant" presentation, Fr. Gaffney said.

Schweppe pointed out that the legislators had worked hard last year to solve the problem. The judges, he added, don't have a precedent to guide them. It is up to them whether or not they will lend support to the legislators.

THE PETITIONERS, Fr. Gaffney said, are trying to establish a connection between church and state.

The small amount of money involved will not support the Church, Fr. Gaffney insisted.

Fr. Gaffney cited a report in the Jan. 29 issue of The Chronicle of Higher Education that pointed out how Catholic colleges in the U.S. have fought for autonomy.

"THERE IS a relationship but not control by the Church," Fr. Gaffney added. "The petitioners would like to show there is control."

Assistant Attorney General Malachy Murphy told the Court that the program is constitutional but the way it is being operated may not be, according to the Associated Press.

Presently, the state makes $100 available to resident students attending private colleges and universities in Washington. The students assign the money to the institutions which then are given a check by the state.

MURPHY ADDED that the tuition supplements should be evaluated on a college-by-college basis.

It is now up to the court to decide the issue. It is uncertain when the decision will be handed down.

Fr. Gaffney pointed out that it is hoped the decision will come during this session of the Legislature so that legislators would have time to come up with an alternative method.

Destruction of society due to 'total critique'

by Robyn Fritz

The "total critique of society is a name given to the phenomenon of our time" that seeks to completely destroy present society, Dr. Gerhart Niemeyer said Thursday.

Dr. Niemeyer, an authority on international law and a professor of government at Notre Dame University, was the 1973 McGarrigle Lecture Series speaker.

Dr. Niemeyer said that there are three examples of this destructive attitude in modern society.

THE COMMUNIST doctrine holds that our present society must be destroyed because it has no value, "is totally inhuman and false," and "cannot be improved or reformed."

Communism holds that only the future society that comes from the destruction of the present is valuable.

Dr. Niemeyer declared that Nazism also manifested this view. The Nazis rejected any obligation toward the present and lived for a future which they would build.

The New Left of the 60's is also an example of this view.

"YOUNG PEOPLE discounted and discarded society. They negated any norm except revolution and demonstrated their rejection through their hair, clothes and living style," Dr. Niemeyer said.

They advocated "creative destruction," an idea that "if you totally destroy the present, something new and good must come."

Dr. Niemeyer warned that the "grievances or concern for justice" which these individuals claim to uphold do not underline the nihilistic movements.

"THEY USE every available issue and mobilize them into a general rejection of society."

"These ideas are irrational and nihilistic," Dr. Niemeyer declared. "They are attacking existence as it is, then life . . . then the divine ground . . . It is an assault against heaven . . . morality . . . and, in the case of Nietzsche, even reason."

Dr. Niemeyer pointed out that the future envisioned by such men as the French philosophers Morelly and Fourier, and by Marcuse and Marx, "is not based on anything man has experienced."

THIS IS WHAT Robert Musil called the "second reality."

"Their minds have shut themselves off from reality" and created a world of their own.

But the new thinkers are in trouble.

"They have lost the idea of the future but the revolutionary attitudes have not subsided. At one time they had a second reality but now they don't know or care what will come."

Dr. Niemeyer said the men who project such ideas are alienated.

"THEY SEE themselves as victims of history and life . . . they have nothing in common with anyone, no roots in this world . . . but they postulate that a new world can be created."

They are seeking a "total power . . . capable of molding men's feelings to the world that is coming."

Dr. Niemeyer insisted that these ideas are diffused in our society and must be combatted. He urged all "thinking people" to make a serious study of the problem and attempt to understand what is happening in our society and why.

"The foremost task of all thinking people of our time is to distinguish between what is real and unreal, what is authentic and perverted, and what is rational and irrational."

Mink: Awareness needed

Women must foster a greater awareness of American social concerns, Congresswoman Patsy T. Mink (D-Hawaii) said Friday in Pigott Auditorium.

Ms. Mink's speech initiated the AWS-sponsored "Women in Change" month, a month devoted to different aspects of modern woman.

Ms. Mink urged women to "follow the human concerns in society at large" and not devote themselves exclusively to "single-minded pursuits."

"THERE IS A much greater and fuller responsibility toward which we must work," she declared.

That responsibility is to mobilize women to fight President Nixon's proposed budget terminations of many of the social-welfare programs initiated by the Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

'Women in Change'

Social roles to be viewed

AWS sponsored "Women in Change" month will continue this week. Drs. Haig and Hamida Bosmajian and Jeananne will be featured speakers.

The month is designed to promote social awareness of the changing role of women.

TODAY: Drs. Haig and Hamida Bosmajian will discuss 'Social Roles in Change' at noon in Pigott Auditorium. Dr. Haig Bosmajian is an associate professor of speech at the University of Washington. Dr. Hamida Bosmajian is an S.U. assistant English professor.

THURSDAY: Jeananne Oliphant will lead a group discussion on social change at noon in the Chieftain Lounge. Ms. Oliphant is presently in charge of group counseling at S.U.'s Counseling and Testing Center.

SUNDAY: 'Evolution of a Sis-

Patsy Mink

"If we are to really achieve recognition in our country of the social purposes the government exists for, we must make a concerted effort to rise up and defend the social programs that provide aid for the downtrodden."

THESE PROGRAMS are housing projects, open-space developments, urban renewal, Model Cities, Neighborhood Youth Corps, Office of Economic Opportunity, library assistance and drug abuse programs.

"Each of us has a terribly important role to play in society and can make a contribution. But it has to be felt and believed by the individual," Ms. Mink declared.

Ms. Mink insisted that the end of the Vietnam war proved that concerted action of dedicated Americans could influence government action. Efforts must now be concentrated on achieving in peace the type of society Americans want. This work requires the active participation of all Americans, she said.

Ms. Mink also focused on women's rights. She discussed the Equal Pay Act and the 30 million women in the work force who "work because they want to work."

THESE WOMEN have an "inalienable right" to equal pay, equal opportunities for promotion and the chance to make policy decisions.

She also discussed the last Congress' proposed amendment to the higher education act that prohibits sex discrimination in all public schools. She insisted that women will always be "second best" if the discrimination in education at the academic level continues.

"It is important to stress the notion that all we're interested in is a fair shake," she declared.

In answering a question on the ramification of the Equal Rights Amendment, Ms. Mink said the legislature must be convinced that "discrimination really exists."

She admitted that this is difficult to do, since many people do not take the women's rights issue seriously. But she felt it was possible, if women worked together.

Mary Louise Williams named co-winner of spiritual award

Mary Louise Williams, of the minority affairs office, was named a co-winner of the Mahalia Jackson Spiritual Award at the first annual Black Community Merit Awards banquet Friday.

Ms. Williams is the job developer and community resource specialist in the minority affairs office. She is also a third-year student in community services.

SHE WON the award on the basis of her numerous contributions to Seattle's black community.

Ms. Williams was cited for her work on the Welfare Rights Organization and the Model City program. "I was the first one to organize the Welfare Rights Organization in the state of Washington back in 1965," she said.

"I was also the first community organizer and vocational counselor back then," she added.

SHE WAS also cited for having raised 18 foster children in her home during the past few years.

Mary Louise Williams

The award was named after Mahalia Jackson because, according to Ms. Williams, "she was unselfish in the eyes of everyone."

The first annual Black Community Merit Awards was sponsored by The Medium, a black community newspaper published by Chris Bennett. The awards were presented at the Heritage House.

'Happiness is coming home again' soon

Feb. 21-25 are the dates for the 1973 Homecoming, according to Ed McFerran, Homecoming chairman. The theme is "Happiness is Coming Home Again" and features events for alumni, students and faculty.

The activities begin on Feb. 21, after the Loyola game, with a get-together for the S.U. coaches and alumni at the Blue Banjo Tavern in Pioneer Square.

On Feb. 22, there will be an informal business's lunch for the alumni, faculty and students of the business department. It will be at the Catholic Seamen's Club at 11:30 a.m.

A COMPLIMENTARY concert by S.U.'s A' Cappella Choir and Chieftain Chorale will be on Feb. 22 at noon in Pigott Auditorium. The concert will feature the choir's first performance of Bach's "All Breathing Life."

Feb. 23 has been designated alumni day on campus, when alumni will attend classes. At noon, the Chief Sealth Marching Band will parade through campus for a rally with the basketball team and cheerleaders.

The Royal Lichtenstein 1/4 Ring Sidewalk Circus will give two performances on the evening of Feb. 23 at Bellarmine Hall. The Balalaika Trio, a Russian singing group led by Sergei Kalfov, an S.U. student, will also provide entertainment. Russian food will be served.

THE HOMECOMING basketball game will be at 2 p.m. Feb. 24 against Pepperdine.

The climax of the Homecoming events will be the Homecoming dance at the Olympic Hotel on the evening of Feb. 24 from 9 to 1. There will be two dances, one featuring the Wyatt Howard band in the Grand ballroom, and the other with the "Acapulco Gold" in the Spanish ballroom.

Tickets are $5 per couple, which will admit holders to both dances.

Throughout the week, an alumni-student production of "There's a Girl in My Soup" will run at Teatro Inigo.

Vote on drinking age should come Friday

by Jim Heil

The final committee vote for the bill to lower the legal drinking age to 18 should take place Friday, according to Bill Denend, Committee Clerk for the House Judiciary Committee.

The Committee has been considering various bills to change the legal age of imbibing. HB 240 and SB 2216 are identical bills, brought up in the House and Senate Judiciary Committees respectively, that propose to lower the drinking age to 18. Both bills have numerous sponsors.

THE HEARING for HB 240, held last Wednesday, brought out reasons for a compromise bill, HB 350, sponsored by Dick Symthe (R.-Vancouver) that would lower the age to 19.

Denend explained: "The main objections to the 18-year-old bill are that it would put liquor in the hands of the age groups directly below the 18 year old. The 18 year old is, in many cases, a senior in high school and there would be supposedly more peer group pressure to acquiesce to the under-age demands. Representative Symthe feels his compromise bill would take care of this problem."

The Restaurant Association of Washington has come out in favor of the 18-year-old bill mainly because the majority of restaurant workers in the state are people under 21. The passage of MB 240 would enable those over 18 to serve liquor with meals, where now the under 21 group is only allowed to serve the meal, as S.U. students have experienced.

THE PROPOSITION to lower the age was put into two identical bills in the House and Senate to expedite its passage, Denend said. Should it pass the committee, it will be sent through a long legislative process that can be amended or stopped at any point. If it does survive both House and Senate, it will become law, as Governor Evans has come out in favor of the 18-year-old bill.

Spurs to hold Founders' Day Tea Sunday

Spurs will hold a Founder's Day Tea Sunday to celebrate the founding of the national organization and of the campus organization.

The tea is from 2-4 p.m. in the Stimson room of the A. A. Lemieux Library.

All former Spurs and advisers of the past 21 years are invited. Organizers expect at least 100 to attend.

B. J. HARTMAN, a junior and national vice president of education for the group, will discuss how Spurs have changed or "grown up."

Anne McBride, vice president of S.U.'s Spurs, will also speak at the tea.

Old scrapbooks with the history of S.U.'s Spurs will be on display.

Chairwomen for the event are Madeline Weber and Joanne Kiesel.

SPURS, A national service honorary, was founded by Jessica Donaldson in Bozeman, Mont. Feb. 14, 1922.

The S.U. chapter received a national charter May 13, 1953 with 45 original members. Since then, Spurs have been active on campus in activities ranging from sucker sales for the March of Dimes to Las Vegas Night to canned food and clothing drives.

Spurs are presently working at Pacific Prevocational School.

Spurs are sophomore women chosen on the basis of scholarship, leadership, interest and participation in college activities and dependability.

SACRIFICE, Patriotism, Understanding and Responsibility are the key ideals of Spurs.

There are currently 59 chapters of Spurs in 17 states from Alaska to New Mexico.

SAM to have guest speaker

Robert E. Metcalf, coordinator of the Highline Community College Aviation Industry Institute, will be a guest speaker at the next meeting of the Society for the Advancement of Management.

Metcalf will discuss "Behavioral Aspects of Management" at 12:15 p.m. Friday in the Paul Volpe conference room, first floor Pigott.

All students are invited to attend.

christian ideals

To the editor:

We would like to quote Dr. Paul Cook's statement concerning the Supreme Court's ruling on abortion that appeared in the Jan. 30 Spectator: "I think it's a positive step. I'm happy to see it."

We would also like to quote a passage from the S.U. Bulletin of Information which sets forth the principles which guide a Catholic university: "... it affirms its belief in a support of Christian ideals and values ..."

It would seem to us that these statements are contradictory. We wonder if Dr. Paul Cook can, in good conscience, continue to work for an institution with which, concerning fundamental Christian, and therefore human, values, he is in disagreement.

sensationalism

To the editor:

Last week I was asked to give a comment on the Supreme Court's ruling on abortion.

I was quoted as saying, "It's fine for me to say I'm against abortion, but I'm not pregnant." The reporter, caring for a whim of sensationalism, decided to cut it there. I went on to say that in studying the life sciences, I have gained a higher respect for life.

By stopping where she did, she gave the false impression that if I did become pregnant I would consider having an abortion. When a person gives an opinion it is a reflection of their beliefs and morals and it is the reporter's obligation to treat it with respect.

deepest gratitude

To the editor:

... by letting African Christianity adapt to the new cultures painfully emerging from the problems of modern Africa, Fr. Victor Mertens, S.J., said.

The painful emergence of the new cultures is but a part of the cyclical repetition of communitational paternalism in its varying masks imposed on Africans by the hearless, the slaves of the powers of wealth who happen to be our pitiless and inhumane colonizers.

There was corruption and delusion in Africa and a disunity (tribalism) caused by such outside influence and inflictment. This is intrinsic, as I have extirpated in Father's statement:

But now Africa wants to become itself "(as a result of awareness)" ... it sees itself with its own culture and values "(re-introduced by nationalism)."

Words enclosed within parentheses are my own.

Overall, my deepest gratitude to Father Mertens who spoke (not on behalf of or for) but truthfully about a whole within a whole of which I am a part. Thank you.

CHIEFTAIN CORNER

by Pete Caw

It looked as if someone may have realigned the sights on the Chieftain's Rifle during the past week, but the same couldn't be said for the big center Greg Williams.

To draw a simple contrast, the Chiefs' 6'8" pivot man only picked up 14 points in Saturday's Loyola contest while Rod "Rifle" Derline brought home a big 22 that same night.

Derline, who seemed to have lost his eye for the basket—to many afficianados of the game—was back to his old self, shooting holes in the net. If only he had found himself half a dozen games ago, the Chiefs might not be sporting a sad 1-6 league record.

Frank the Frosh, who, as everyone knows, has been climbing to the top in the WCAC, must have fallen into a hole down in L. A. as he sunk only 9 points against Loyola. A bit short of his usual performances.

Williams, who has lost some of his shooting prowess perhaps, is still the rebound king however, as he grabbed a game leading 16 on Saturday.

There's still just a chance that if Williams, Derline, Oley-nick and teammates all have good nights on the SAME night, the Chiefs could win a league game.

Chieftain road trip ends in defeat; three opponents take their toll

by Evie Pech

The Chieftains got the rotten end of the stick on the last road trip.

Last Thursday, they were attacked by a flock of Pepperdine Waves led by William (The Bird) Averitt.

Without Dick and Bob Gross, the Chiefs did some fast thinking and playing. Early in the game, they created a 10-point lead, 23-13.

HOWEVER, it seems like the Chiefs don't know what to do when they lead by so much. Averett and Dick Skophammer combined their talents to take advantage of their opponents' state of awe.

Before the halftime buzzer sounded, the Waves had not only caught up with the Chiefs but had taken the lead. Score at the half was 44-43.

Greg Williams had a decent evening once again, scoring 25 points. Fifteen were poured in during the first half.

FRANK (THE FROSH) Oley-nick dumped in 23. Ron Howard popped in 13, Lenzy Stuart dropped in 8 and Steve Endresen hit for 6.

Rod Derline had another frustrating night, coming up with only 4. Jesse McGaffie, Ron Bennett and Jim Ferguson each put in 2.

True to form, the Chieftains couldn't hold a lead. The final score saw the Waves wash over the Chiefs, 97-85.

The Chiefs struck out again Saturday night against the Loyola Lions.

THIS TIME, the loss came in the last 10 minutes of play. The Chiefs held the lead throughout the first half and most of the second but just couldn't make it stick.

Rod Derline, fighting his way out of a slump, drove for 22 points. Frank Oleynick fouled out with seven minutes left in the contest and with nine points to his name.

Ron Howard made 15 and pulled down 14 rebounds. The rest of the team threw in a total of 14 between them.

AS IS ACTUALLY the case, the Chieftains blew it with turnovers, racking up 25 while the Lions had only 18.

Steve Smith, the big man on the Loyola team, led the pack with 24 points. Luther Philyaw, the Lions' freshman answer to Oleynick, tossed in 16.

The final score for that one was Loyola 86, S.U. 74.

The Chieftains dropped their third road game last night against the Utah State Aggies.

As if the loss wasn't enough, the final score was more than humiliating: 108-82.

The Aggies controlled the contest from the beginning and the Chiefs just never had the energy to catch up. At the half, the S.U. squad trailed by 20 points and slid downhill from there.

Frank Oleynick saw his best game of the season with 30 points, followed by Rod Derline and Greg Williams with 16 each. The Aggies were led by Jim Boatwright and Bob Lorinsky with 26 apiece.

Newsbriefs

abortion and euthanasia

Abortion and related human life issues will be discussed by Dr. Maury Sheridan Thursday at 1 p.m. in the A. A. Lemieux Library Auditorium. Dr. Sheridan will speak on "The Court Decision on Abortion and Implications for Life."

Dr. Sheridan will also speak on the new efforts to enact euthanasia legislation in Washington.

He is a board member of the Human Life organization in Seattle and has taught courses in communications on the high school and college levels. The talk, sponsored by the Society for the Christian Commonwealth, is free and open to the public.

dorm lecture series set

The Bellarmine dorm council is sponsoring a dorm speaker series beginning tomorrow.

Dr. Joseph Gallucci of the fine arts/music department will initiate the series at 6:30 p.m. in the Bellarmine study lounge.

His topic is "Realistic Goals in College" or "What Are You Getting for $10,000?"

All students are invited to attend.

four's-a-company

Four's-A-Company, a group of S.U. musicians, will perform in the Tabard Sunday from 9-11:30 p.m.

There is no cover charge.

Members of the group are Kevin Peterson, Paula Wheeldon, Robin Achorn and Mary Frix.

we bombed in new haven

Auditions are scheduled Thursday from 2-5 p.m. and Friday from 2-5 p.m. and 6-9:30 p.m.

The play was written by Joseph Heller, author of Catch-22. The Poncho production will be the Northwest premiere of the show.

All students interested should contact George Mead, 282-7398.

tm meeting scheduled

Barbara and Michael Mastro, teachers of transcendental meditation, will be on campus this week to present an introductory lecture about TM.

The session is scheduled for Friday at 1 p.m. in the A. A. Lemieux Library, room 114.

The Mastros have recently returned from a six-week advanced training course for teachers with the Maharishi Mahesh Yogi in Santa Barbara, Calif.

TM is a scientific technique that can be done by anyone, the Mastros said.

The benefits of the technique are numerous, they added. Many students have reported an improvement in their grades as well as feeling more creative and energetic.

TM has been established as a credit course in many schools across the country, including Harvard, Stanford, UCLA and many high schools.

one of the catonsville nine here

George Mische, a member of the Catonsville Nine, will speak Thursday at 10 a.m. in the Bannan Auditorium, first floor Bannan.

His topic will be "The Catonsville Nine and Prison Reform."

Mische is presently executive director of the National Coordinating Committee for Justice under Law, a non-profit research and resource organization concerned with the problem of prison reform in the U.S.

The NCCJL is working for the office of Rep. Herman Badillo, D-New York, to study prison reform and incidents like the Attica prison disturbance.

Mische's appearance is sponsored by the Political Union.

Slow in starting, but gymnastics team is now well under way

After facing many difficulties in starting, the University's Girl's Gymnastics Team is now well under way and preparing for meets with teams from other colleges.

Organized by Monica Brown, a freshman, the team consists of Ms. Brown and four other girls, three freshmen and one sophomore.

Originally, it started as a club with about 20 members but it gradually decreased to five people.

The team is being coached by George Lewis, a nationally known gymnastics coach, Jack Henderson and Jeanne Powell. All are doing this work voluntarily.

MS. BROWN stated that they had prepared a budget that amounted to $700. They presented it to the student senate, asking to be given whatever amount they could get.

She emphasized that the amount they get determines how much they can do. The senate awarded the team $75.

She also said that they needed a lot of support both financially and in the way of encouragement as the team still needs a lot of self-confidence before the Regional meet they will participate in Feb. 23-24.

Injuries have limited team practices, Ms. Brown said, so the team's first meets will be against Mercer Island and Newport High Schools in order to get used to competing against other teams. These meets will be held on Saturday and Sunday.

IN THE REGIONAL meet, which will be at the U.W., the team will compete against all colleges having gymnastic teams, plus two Canadian college teams.

On Mar. 3, they will meet Eastern Washington State College and Washington State University.

On Mar. 10, they will take part in another meet with Washington State University. Mt. Royal College, Central Washington University of Montana will also participate in that meet.

After spring break, they will be having a meet with Yakima YMCA and a home meet with Seattle Pacific College and Green River Community College.

On Feb. 22, the team will put on a demonstration at Connolly P.E. Center. It is open to the public. Students are invited to see the team perform as the team needs to get used to performing in front of a large audience, Ms. Brown said.

THE TEAM practices Tuesdays to Fridays from 4-6 p.m. and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to noon at the Connolly P.E. Center.

Anyone interested in joining the team is welcome, Ms. Brown said.
